Tony DiMatteo, a painter with the 355th Civil Engineering Squadron's Ostrom Paint contractor, puts the final touches on a new sign designating D-M's Child Development Center as the Dorothy H. Finley Child Development Center. The center will be dedicated Monday in a formal ceremony. Finley, a charter member of DM-50, has championed many base needs in the quality of life area. The new sign is a daily reminder of how Finley has been an advocate of D-M military families.

Guard to aid in airport security

By Staff Sgt. Shanda De Anda
355th Wing Public Affairs

Tucson International Airport is one of the many airports across the nation that have increased security with the help of state National Guard members. Security regulations at TIA are undergoing continual changes, making it unclear for military and their family members to know exactly what to expect when traveling.

Sept. 27, in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, airport security was added to the National Guard's growing list of civil support and homeland defense missions at the direction of President Bush, but full implementation of the extensive security proposal may take four to six months.

Hornburg assumes command of ACC

By Erin Zagursky

Air Combat Command Public Affairs

Gen. Hal Hornburg assumed command of Air Combat Command Wednesday becoming ACC's sixth commander.

Upon taking command, Hornburg, a 1968 graduate of Texas A&M University's ROTC program, thanked Lt. Gen. Don Cook for his hard work.

Cook stood in as ACC's commander after Jumper became Air Force chief of staff in September. The job was especially challenging after the events of Sept. 11, Hornburg said.

Hornburg stated the three missions he has for ACC: development of airmen, preparedness to deploy, and readiness to fight. "If there's a call for boots on the ground, we want to be the force that kicks down the door ... so that soldiers and Marines won't have to wade through their own blood as they win this war or the next one," he said. Hornburg spoke of the various leaders who helped develop him as a young officer, and he encouraged members of the audience to find and develop airmen of every rank. "That is your mark as a leader," he said, "if the people you developed think of you as a mentor, coach and leader."

Hornburg comes from Randolph AFB, Texas, where he commanded Air Education and Training Command. Before that he served as ACC's vice commander.

He is a command pilot with 4,000 flying hours. He directed air operations over Bosnia, commanded the Joint Warfighting Center, served on the Joint Staff, and served as director of operations at Headquarters U.S. Air Force.

As the commander of ACC, Hornburg oversees more than 1,000 aircraft and 100,000 active-duty military and civilian people at 26 major installations in the United States, Iceland and Portugal.

ACC organizes, trains, equips and maintains combat-ready forces for rapid deployment and employment while ensuring strategic air defense forces are ready to meet the challenges of peacetime air sovereignty and wartime defense.

Supporting each other and working together to provide the best programs and services is a goal for all D-M people.

Ideas, suggestions, comments, concerns and kudos are important improvement.

The best way to pass along a comment or to get an answer to a concern is to contact the agency chief or functional manager listed here.

Still no solution? The Commander's Corner phone line is 228-4747.

An e-mail can also be sent to: 355thWingCommandersCorner@dm.af.mil.

Callers must leave their name, phone number and a message, and will receive a prompt reply in writing or by telephone. We will honor caller confidentiality, but sometimes we need to contact callers to gather additional information. If a concern is of general interest to the base populace, the response may be published in the Desert Airman. Anonymous calls may not be published.

Denied Access

Concern: I was denied access to the base because the temporary base pass I had expired and they would not renew it. I purchased this car July 10. I still have not received any registration.

Response: We regret any inconvenience caused by not issuing a new pass, however, Air Force Motor Vehicle Traffic Supervision, AFI 31-204, paragraph 3.2 states that a certificate of state registration (permanent registration) along with military ID, drivers license, and proof of insurance is required in order to register a vehicle.

Due to the time it takes to receive permanent registration, it is common that the temporary registration expires before permanent registration is received, especially when the vehicle was purchased from a dealer.

Since instructions prohibit the issue of a pass without current registration, customers are advised that it is their responsibility to contact either the dealer where the vehicle was purchased and/or the Motor Vehicle Department before it expires.

Additionally, AFI 31-209, Base Supplement, Paragraph 2.5.1.1 states that if a vehicle does not have a base decal and the occupants are authorized on the base, the occupants must obtain an Air Force Form 75, Visitor/Vehicle Pass. The individual must present the same information to receive the AF Form 75 (for newly acquired vehicles, a temporary registration will suffice).

The pass for newly acquired vehicles is valid for up to 45 days, or the expiration of the temporary registration, whichever comes first.

Passport

Question: I need to know where I must write, call or e-mail about renewing our passports.

Response: The Military Personnel Flight can assist in processing official no-fee passports and visa applications for military members/dependents, DOD civilians/dependents and employees of federal government agencies. These people are issued official no-fee passports only when traveling to a country which requires a passport. Unfortunately, we do not process passport applications for military retirees or their dependents who are not affiliated with DOD, however, we refer any customers, military or civilian, desiring tourist passports to the following address in Tucson:

Davis-Monthan Unit Public Affairs Representatives

Unit Public Affairs Representatives are the "eyes and ears" of the 355th Wing Public Affairs office. Each squadron has unique individuals that have interesting stories to tell, whether it is about sports, awards, lifesaving acts, IDEA program contributions, etc.

Stories also include units making improvements to the methods or processes that they use or to squadron facilities or community areas via self help projects. UPARs are responsible for getting the information to PA in a usable format and in a timely manner.

The PA staff focuses on issues that effect the base populace in general and UPARs judge the input for newsworthiness or unique human interest appeal before forward it to the PA staff.

Public Affairs utilizes UPARs to better tell a squadron's story. UPAR responsibilities include:

- ◆ Provide news ideas as well as write and shoot photos of squadron activities for submission to the base newspaper;
- ◆ Review and solicit Hometown News Release submissions;
- ◆ Review squadron submissions to the base marquee and Commander's Access Channell (COX Communications Channel 75)
- ◆ Seek volunteers for tours and speaking engagements

A penny saved ... Thrift Savings Plan

By Staff Sgt. J. Elaine Hunnicutt
355th Wing Public Affairs

The Thrift Savings Plan season is underway through Jan 31. The TSP began in 1987 and was designed to provide investment options for retirement supplementation. Originally limited to civil servant employees, Congress recently opened the TSP to uniformed service members for the first time.

TSP does differ from the civil servants and a traditional 401K plans because the DOD does not (yet) match the amount invested by the employee. However, each service has been authorized to provide matching funds to critical career fields, but the Air Force has not identified any fields at this time.

"This is a good way to learn about the market (for people with a limited knowledge of investing)," said Clayton Moore, Family Support Center base personal financial program manager

"This is a great program; one I've used (as a civilian employee). It is a 'no brainer,' because it reduces your federal taxes, clearly a benefit all by itself," said Moore.

This plan allows members to invest up to seven percent of their base pay during this TSP season; deductions will start in January. Officials plan to increase the investment options in the upcoming seasons. The maximum amount will rise to 10 percent by 2005 and become unlimited in 2006.

Service members can start, change or reallocate their TSP contributions during two open seasons held each year: November to January and May to July. During these seasons members can make changes to their investment amounts and even change the type of investments. Investment options range from low to high risk.

Service members have the option of investing all or part of any special, incentive or bonus pay.

The total amount generally cannot exceed $11,000 for the year. Contributions from pay earned in a combat zone don't count against the $11,000 ceiling. Combat zone contributions are limited to $40,000.

Service members may choose how they want their money invested. Currently there are five funds to choose from; the G, F, C, S, and I, (each with varying degrees of risk). The G Fund is invested in short-term nonmarketable U.S. Treasury securities guaranteed by the full faith of the U.S. Government. The F fund is invested in Lehman Brothers U.S. Aggregate bond index funds. The C Fund is invested in a Standard & Poor's 500 stock index funds. The S Fund is invested in a Wilshire 4500 stock index fund and the I fund is invested in a Europe, Australia and Far East stock index funds. All have increasing levels of risk.

Contributions to the plan come from "pre-tax" dollars. Service members pay no federal or state income taxes on contributions or earnings until they're withdrawn. Each Air Force member will be provided a booklet 'Guide to TSP Investments' from their unit orderly rooms, which will help clarify and explain the program in depth.

Forms to sign-up for allotments can be obtained from Finance or members may sign-up through EMSS or directly through the TSP Web site, www.tsp.gov. For more information, contact the Family Support Center at 8-5690.

D-M takes care of its own

By Karen Halstead
355th Wing Public Affairs

Commanders and service agency representatives met with spouses of recently deployed D-M military members at the Desert Dove Chapel Nov. 8 and 13. "Information will continue to be provided to spouses during future deployments," said Tech. Sgt. Mike Starkey, Family Support Center family readiness NCO.

The FSC sponsored the informational seminars and prepared a slide show of D-M military members who have been deployed to Southwest Asia. Family members saw the living conditions and tent cities their family members endure during deployments.

"We want to ease your minds," said Col. Robert Yates, 355th Operations Group commander.

"You might be asking why he or she had to go," Yates said. "(Just) Remember the mental images of the event in September. The nation has called upon us (the military). We understand it is inconvenient during the holidays and it can affect morale.

"Your military members are missing you as much as you are missing them," he said. Communication with deployed members is difficult, but in an emergency, families can contact unit first sergeants and commanders to get information to those deployed, according to Yates.

"It's important that in each of your units you have some sort of support and meet with others," Yates said. "Meet with others who are experiencing the same challenge you are."

Families receiving returned mail should contact the member's first sergeant for updated address information, according to Chief Master Sgt. Robert Koltanowski, acting 355th Wing command chief master sergeant.

The base chapel offers programs including, Mothers of Preschoolers, marriage enrichment seminars, youth, men's and women's groups, volunteer opportunities and weekly chapel services. For more information about Chapel programs call 228-5411.

"Any problem you have at the Base Exchange, let the store manager know," Dewey Brown, Davis-Monthan AAFES general manager said. "While your spouses are deployed those families affected have several options on special interest rates for both the Deferred Payment Plan and the Star Card." Brown encourages those members affected by the recent deployments to contact their first sergeant to get the specifics on the reduced interest rates.

"We want to keep everyone healthy and help you keep yourself healthy," said Capt. Matthew Hansen, 355th Medical Group group practice manager. "Our goal is to take care of our customers, with an emphasis on families left behind."

A recent problem with the clinic's appointment system may make getting appointments difficult, according to Hansen, who suggests anyone experiencing appointment problems make their appointment by contacting their assigned panel directly.

Adults with a valid identification card may seek assistance at Family Advocacy in programs such as: stress management, anger management, individual skill building, relationship enhancement-couples counseling, parenting toddlers, and breastfeeding class. No records are opened and no medical record entries are made. For more information call Family Advocacy at 228-2104.

The 355th Services Squadron offers several programs. A new program will provide groups at D-M the ability to design special outings or events, said Dan Thelen, 355th Services Squadron director of marketing. Anyone interested in designing such an outing should contact the Community Center. Children up to 18 year olds can bowl free at the Bowling Center from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesdays. No supervision is offered; young children should be accompanied.

Wills, Powers of Attorney, and Deployments

Military members face the ever-present possibility of global deployment; when the possibility becomes reality, don't be unprepared.

Having your legal affairs in order when you're notified of a deployment will help ease your mind – plus you'll have one less stop to make.

A power of attorney is a legal document in which you designate another person (your agent) to act on your behalf and handle your personal and business matters.

There are two basic types of POAs: general and special.

A general POA gives your agent the authority to do (in your name) almost anything you could legally do; this should cause you to think twice. Think long and hard about the person you appoint as your agent. Often spouses and close family members fill this role best.

In order to limit your agent's power, consider a special POA. With a special POA you give only specific powers to your agent. For example, you can give your agent the authority to sell a particular vehicle, or pay bills on a certain bank account.

When preparing to deploy, people often ask, "do I need a will?" The answer is "it depends."

If you are married, especially with children, you should have a will to name a guardian for your minor children in case both you and your spouse predecease them.

Another frequently asked question is "I had a will done at my last base, do I need a new one?"

No, the will is still valid, even if you've moved or PCS'd. However, if you've experienced major changes in your life such as marriage, divorce, children, or the death of a family member who was to benefit under your current will, you should talk to an attorney about getting a new will.

If you have questions and would like to speak to an attorney, visit the legal office during legal assistance hours, Monday and Wednesday 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., and Friday 8 to 10 a.m.

POAs are available Monday through Thursday 8 to 10:30 a.m. and 3 to 4 p.m. and Friday 8 to 10:30 a.m.

Remember, if you're prepared well in advance, you'll have less to worry about if you have to deploy at a moment's notice. (Courtesy of the 355th Wing Legal Office)

Airport

tion, there are several actions D-M members and their families can take to stay safe and avoid delays as they process through TIA security check points.

"Leave early, at least two hours prior to your departure time. When packing, pack cosmetic items like nail files, finger/toe-nail clippers or any other type of metal objects like knives or pocket tool kits in luggage that will be checked. Do not hand carry these items or take in carry-on luggage; they will be discovered at the security check areas, causing considerable delays for yourself and other passengers.

"Be aware of your surroundings by being mentally alert to changes in the environment. When arriving at the Airport check-in, move to the secure area as soon as possible. Be aware that only ticketed passengers can enter the arrival's secure area, so have your family members meet you in the baggage claim area," said Master Sgt. Walter Voltz, 355th Security Forces Squadron quality control NCO in charge.

In an effort to ensure the safety of passengers, while trying to minimize unnecessary disruptions or inconveniences, TIA has relaxed several of the restrictions implemented after the tragic events Sept. 11. All scheduled commercial airlines at TIA have resumed service and curbside check-in has also resumed.

To help D-M members and their families expedite security processing at TIA when traveling or meeting incoming passengers there are several things to remember:

- ◆ Have a government issued photo ID.
- ◆ No unattended vehicles are permitted in front of the terminal. Passengers may be dropped off and baggage unloaded on the upper level roadway.
- ◆ Passengers not checking bags may proceed to the security checkpoint.
- ◆ E-ticketed passengers, not checking bags, may present the original airline-issued receipt in lieu of a boarding pass at the security checkpoint.
- ◆ Access beyond the security checkpoint is limited to passengers with a valid boarding pass and photo ID. To expedite the screening process, passengers are advised to reduce the amount of metal-based attire they wear through the checkpoints. Escorts with proper ID may accompany passengers that require special assistance.
- ◆ No knives or cutting instruments of any length or composition are permitted past the security checkpoint. Walking canes and umbrellas, safety razors (disposable), syringes (with documented proof of medical need), and eyelash curlers are permitted in carry on. PLEASE NOTE: Any items confiscated at the security checkpoint will not be returned.

◆ Carry-on luggage is limited to one bag and one personal item (purse or briefcase). All luggage, checked and carry on, is subject to random inspection.

Arriving passengers may be greeted on the public side of the security checkpoint, in baggage claim, or outside the terminal in the parking lot.

"Also, remember operational and communication security training and protect information from unknown people.

"Pay attention to your surroundings and attempt to blend in. Avoid any type of heroic response to any given situation. When possible, assume a submissive posture, avoid direct eye contact and comply with all instructions given," said Voltz.

For the latest security information at TIA, visit their Web site at www.tucsonairport.org.

The site is updated on a regular basis to reflect the most current information available.

Selling on consignment helps everyone

By Karen Halstead
355th Wing Public Affairs

Those old small kitchen appliances rarely, if ever used, peek out from the back of the shelf. Tired of moving them around? How about clothing still in good shape, well-used furniture, tools or sporting equipment that would make a good donation to the Thrift Shop.

The Thrift Shop accepts both charitable and profitable donations. The number of items an individual can consign to the Thrift Shop varies due to the amount of available store space. The consignee accepts a six-week sales contract and decides the sale price, unless it is a donation.

When items sell, the Thrift Shop keeps 25 percent. Unsold items may be reclaimed the last day of the contract for a small fee. Funds from donated items are accrued to the Thrift Shop program. Individuals leaving Davis-Monthan on PCS orders may consign up to 60 items, for four weeks.

"Pricing is key," said Blanche Bonnell, Thrift Shop manager. "Items priced to high will stay longer than well priced items. The key word is 'thrift' shop."

Proceeds from the Thrift Shop operation, which is co-sponsored by the Officer's Spouses Club and the Enlisted Spouses Association, support the welfare of the D-M community through donations to organization including, the American Lung Association's Camp Not-A-Wheeze, Wright Flight, the Family Support Center's layette program, military recognition programs and holiday packages for deployed military members.

The Thrift Shop is located at the corner of Ironwood and Seventh Streets in Building 3220, first floor.

For more information call 228-2120. Should the shop be closed the manager asks people to leave a message.

Thrift Store hours

Tuesday and Wednesday

from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. (for consignments or donations) and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. for shoppers.

The first Saturday of each month

The sacrifice for freedom

By Jocelyn Baker

(Editor's note: Jocelyn Baker is a sophomore at Santa Rita High School in Tucson. Her father is Lt. Col. David Baker, an A/OA-10 instructor pilot for the 357th Fighter Squadron)

"I'm proud to be an American where at least I know I'm free. And I won't forget the men who died, and gave that right to me."
(Lee Greenwood)

We are all proud to be Americans. Why is that?

Is it because Americans are strong?

Because we have power?

Because we stand together?

Because we are free?

Freedom is a gift all Americans possess, and it is the best gift a person could ever receive.

However, this gift comes at a price, freedom! Which isn't free.

Sadly, I don't think all of today's youth recognize just how incredible the gift of freedom truly is or how much it has cost Americans to obtain and preserve it.

I recognize the bravery, heroism, and dedication of soldiers and airmen fighting for this country. I also know the courage and faith their families must have.

I understand this because I am the daughter of a pilot in the Air Force.

I know how hard it is to say good-bye to your father, knowing he won't return for several months and trying to shake the idea that he may not return at all.

I know how hard it is to live in a foreign country, without the backbone of your family there to hold you all together and tell you everything will be all right.

I can remember crying for hours; because that was the only way I knew to express the pain of missing my father!

Why do so many military families go through this?

They do it for the United States.

They do it for their freedom.

In my opinion, a person cannot be paid enough to sacrifice his life.

However, throughout history, the thought of not having, or losing freedom has made many a man risk his life in the hope of gaining freedom and a better life for his family, friends, and countrymen.

There have been many courageous men in America's history, and that is why we are part of such a superb nation today.

Our country's main principle is standing for freedom, and I, for one, believe that is how it should be.

Other countries envy the United States, not because we are wealthy and powerful but because we have freedom.

The citizens of these countries know that if they had that same freedom, they too could flourish as we have over the years.

America has had its hardships and moments of weakness, but Americans have always pulled together and have become a stronger society by overcoming their obstacles.

I would like to thank all the valiant people who have sacrificed and paid the price to make America free, through both their support and actions.

I hope that my generation will be able to carry on the American way of liberty and justice for all.

"And I'd gladly stand up next to you and defend her still today. 'Cause there ain't no doubt I love this land, God bless the U.S.A!"
(Lee Greenwood)

Code of Conduct

I
I am an American, fighting in the forces which guard my country and our way of life. I am prepared to give my life in their defense.

II
I will never surrender of my own free will. If in command, I will never surrender the members of my command while they still have the means to resist.

III
If I am captured I will continue to resist by all means available. I will make every effort to escape and to aid others to escape. I will accept neither parole nor special favors from the enemy.

IV
If I become a prisoner of war, I will keep faith with my fellow prisoners. I will give no information or take part in any action which might be harmful to my comrades. If I am senior, I will take command. If not, I will obey the lawful orders of those appointed over me and will back them up in every way.

V
When questioned, should I become a prisoner of war, I am required to give name, rank, service number, and date of birth. I will evade answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country and its allies or harmful to their cause.

VI
I will never forget that I am an American, fighting for freedom, responsible for my actions, and dedicated to the principles which made my country free. I will trust in my God and in the United States of America.

Before the development of the pap smear technique by Dr. Papanicolaou in the 1940s (the technique's namesake), cervical cancer was a leading cause of death of women in the United States.

Since that time, widespread screening programs have been instrumental in reducing deaths from cervical cancer. Unfortunately, 16,000 new cases of cervical cancer are diagnosed each year, and 4,800 women die of this disease annually.

Early detection and screening programs are vital in early detection of cervical cancer before it becomes invasive. Some women are unclear as to when to begin routine exams and what puts them at increased risk for the development of cervical cancer. The current recommendation by the American Cancer Society, the American Medical Association, and the American Academy of Family Physicians is to begin annual pap smears when women become sexually active or reach the age of 18. The US Preventive Services Task Force recommends that all women who are sexually active have Pap smear testing done at one to three-year intervals depending on risk factors. Women older than 65 need to speak to their health care provider regarding their risk for the development of cervical cancer.

Risk factors for cervical cancer include women with multiple partners (greater than two), first intercourse before the age of 20 and smoking. Other risk factors include a history of contracting sexually transmitted diseases or intercourse with a partner with a history of sexually transmitted diseases. Immunosuppression and lower socioeconomic status have also been found put women at a higher risk for cervical cancer. Women can lower their risk factors by stopping smoking, limiting the number of sexual partners and by always using condoms when entering new relationships.

Routine screening exams also are vital for early detection. During a routine exam, the health care provider will conduct a comprehensive history to include: menstrual and obstetric history, information regarding any previous gynecologic diseases and/or treatment, and any previous infectious or sexually transmitted diseases. The history normally includes information regarding any breast disease and family history of gynecological diseases. The checkup normally includes an examination of the breast and pelvis at which time cervical samples are obtained and sent to the laboratory. The pathology (laboratory) report will inform your health care provider if any changes or abnormal cells were found on the cervix. In many cases, an abnormal pap test is due to an inflammation caused by a vaginal infection. More serious causes of an abnormal pap include a pattern of abnormal cell growth (dysplasia) or cancer (malignancy).

If an abnormal pap smear result is detected, you and your health care provider will discuss follow up which may range from simply repeating the test, treating for signs of infection or the need for further diagnostic studies.

Fortunately, localized or "early" cervical cancer has a 90-percent, five-year survival rate compared to only about 14 percent with advanced disease. These figures dramatically display the importance of early detection and treatment. Women need to be active and informed participants in their health care. This includes knowing risk factors, decreasing risk factors and keeping up on annual screening exams. (Courtesy 355th Medical Group)

Drive safely this holiday season

By Lt. Gen. William Hobbins
Commander, 12th Air Force

The holiday season is nearly upon us – the time of year that many stop to appreciate what we have, as well as who we have, in our lives.

This time of year is a joyous one for most of us, but for some it is a time to remember loved ones who are no longer with us.

It is time to take personal and family safety into consideration. As you travel this holiday season, I ask you to think "safety first." I need every 12th Air Force member alive and well during and after the upcoming holidays.

Traffic accidents are the number one cause of fatalities in the Air Force.

Seven of eight fatal accidents in 12th Air Force last year resulted from vehicle accidents. This, coupled with the fact traffic-related fatalities are highest from Thanksgiving through New Year's Day, demands extra attention. If you look back over the last four years, statistics show that most of 12th Air Force's fatal accidents have been off duty. The majority of those involved were young, male airmen and NCOs under the age of 26.

Speeding was one of the predominant factors, and we've seen a decrease in the use of protective gear.

So, be aware and be smart.

Make sure there is a designated driver to take you or your family members home if they choose to drink. Follow speed limits, and slow down or even stop when driving in severe weather.

Finally, ensure you use personal protective gear appropriate for your activities.

Whether or not you fall into the "majority" category I've discussed, everyone needs to apply personal risk management skills, especially while driving during the holiday season.

Kudos to all 12th Air Force units, though, as there were no alcohol-related driving fatalities in fiscal 2000 and 2001! Please continue this trend.

You are our most critical asset, especially now, with the high operations tempo and so many deployed to ensure our freedom.

Please make sure you take care of yourself and your family this holiday season.

Life through the eyes of a child

By Karen Halstead
355th Wing Public Affairs

While stationed at Lackland AFB, our family shared an off-base duplex with another military family. My husband worked in a technical training squadron. His uniforms were always sharply creased, shoes shiny and every hair in place.

One evening my husband returned home after the duty day and went to the back yard with our dog, Hubert.

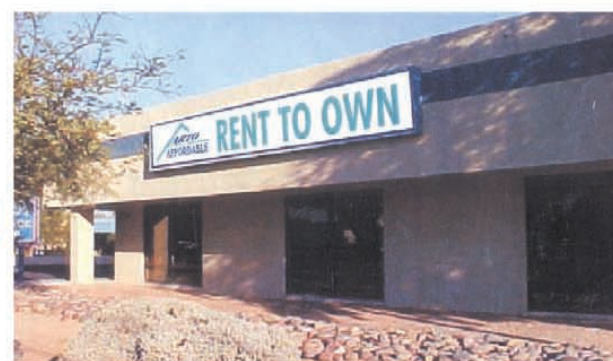

Sitting on the back porch, playing the guitar, he heard the neighbors children come out to play. After a few minutes one of the children exclaimed, "Mommy, mommy the doggy's daddy got his haircut today."

314th TRS graduates train, march into future

355th Wing Public Affairs

The cadence rang through the crisp southern Arizona air. A flight of airmen marched back to class from lunch through a maze of soldiers, sailors, and Marines. The airmen of the 314th Training Squadron are in a training environment not very well known to a large majority of Air Force members.

Located approximately 70 miles southeast of D-M in Sierra Vista, Fort Huachuca houses the training schools for all Morse intercept operators in the military. Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines alike, share training classes, chow halls and even compete against one another in intramural sports.

The Morse interceptor course is a self-paced course that delegates all responsibility to the airmen to learn and utilize all information related to the career field. The course is separated into two classes at Fort Huachuca and one class at Corry Naval Air Station, Fl. There is no instruction involved in the basic course, it is a completely self-paced independent course involving only the student and a computer terminal in which they are introduced to all Morse codes and expected to learn them. The advanced course requires a top-secret clearance and is another self-paced course. Once the trainees complete their class at Fort Huachuca they go temporary duty to Corey NAS for a five-month follow-on school. In total, all three portions of the Morse intercept operator course lasts about a year.

A year though, is nothing for the airmen to be at joint assignments. Outside of four Air Force bases, three of which are overseas, these airmen will spend their entire careers living with, working with and supporting Army installations.

Since rules are different depending on the branch of military, there are sometimes misunderstandings between members of the branches. According to Tech. Sgt. Lisa Vane, a military training leader of two years, the airmen usually don't have too many problems acclimating to the environment at Fort Huachuca, outside of the occasional run-ins with an Army drill sergeant. The most common conflicts between the drill sergeants and the airmen occur when an airman has the misfortune of not following an Army regulation. The majority of the misunderstandings involve airmen not saluting while in physical training gear, or setting their headgear on the table during chow. When asked about being stationed at an Army post, a recent basic training graduate, Airman Crystal O'Brien, of Gettysburg, Pa., responded with this surprising statement, "I was surprised at the environment being so friendly."

Thanks to an intensive physical training program in which the airmen muster at 4:45 a.m. Monday thru Friday, not only do the airmen at Fort Huachuca participate in interservice sports programs, they excel at them. At one point, the airmen won seven straight brigade runs, an event in which they run as a squadron and are only as fast as their slowest member. Currently, heading into the playoffs, the airmen are undefeated and ranked number one in flag football and ranked second place in bowling.

For the permanent party members at Fort Huachuca, outside of the orderly room, it is a volunteer station. There are six military training leaders stationed at Fort Huachuca, all of whom take a great deal of pride in the jobs and relationships with the airmen they mentor. According to Vane, the most difficult part of being an MTL is not being able to help a trainee adjust to military life and having to watch them separate themselves from the Air Force. She says, "A piece of me is lost when I watch them walk out the door."

Capt. Brent Crider, 314th TRS commander, has nothing but praise for his environment at Fort Huachuca and he has an immense amount of pride in his MTLs. Crider says of his MTL's, "They are all really good at what they do and it makes my job easier." That could very well be an understatement as the MTLs at Fort Huachuca have been rated the best in 2nd Air Force, and the airmen of the 314th TRS received the best graduate assessment surveys in Air Education Training Command.

For those interested in the possibilities of becoming an MTL, the only requirement to apply is to be at a minimum a senior airman who has completed Airman Leadership School. It is a three-year controlled tour. To apply, visit www.afpc.randolph.af.mil and look under the enlisted assignments page.

Airman Rhyanna Benally works diligently at her station to learn and master the difficult task of interpreting Morse code.

Final Answer

Why did you become an Military Training Leader?

Capt. Brent Crider

The dynamic, intensive environment. Everyday is an adventure!

Master Sgt. Joseph Harmon

To mentor young airmen, something I saw lacking when I entered. To help them adapt to military life and understand what is expected.

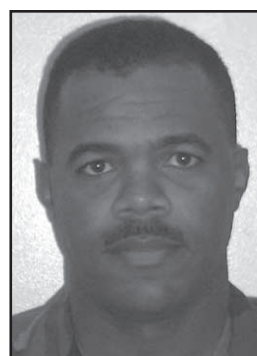

Tech Sgt. Lisa Vane

To mentor ... my peers don't need to be mentored, new airmen do. It is my responsibility to give back to the Air Force and help them succeed.

Tech Sgt. Scott Preston

Because of the students, I heard that the students weren't as high quality as they used to be, I wanted to see for myself and make them better.

Tech Sgt. Johnny Hillary

Retention, take care of people, keep people in. I always had people take care of me and now I want to give back!

Tech Sgt. Daniel Lawless

I lacked guidance as a young airman, I want them to avoid the pitfalls that I fell into.

Staff Sgt. Susan Hankinson-Davenport

Because I love the training environment and the enthusiasm of new troops ... they are excited about the Air Force.

Tiger ain't got nothin' on this girl

By Staff Sgt. J. Elaine Hunnicutt
355th Wing Public Affairs

Similar to her inspiration, Tiger Woods, Rachel Gavin came into this world swinging a set of clubs. "I want to make a living playing golf," said Rachel.

At the age of three, Rachel was swinging in the shadow of her father on the driving range at Ramstein AB, Germany, on makeshift clubs he had made for her. Around the age of 10, she started playing on the course with her father. It was at this point that her love of the game blossomed.

Lt. Col. Milo Gavin, 355th Operations Group Deputy, said his reasons for teaching her to play were selfish. "This is a sport that as we grow older, we can always play together ... it is more mentally challenging than physically, therefore we will be able to share this for a long time," he said.

Rachel is playing for her first female team at Sabino High School. She moved to Tucson just as the season was beginning and quickly found her place as a leader on the team. "They are a talented group of girls and they just kept improving throughout the season," she said.

The 17-year-old high school senior recently competed in the high school regional qualifying tournament, finishing second. She then competed in the state finals held in Phoenix last week and missed the all-state team by one shot ... a devastating blow for Rachel. "I will relive that event in my mind for the rest of my life."

Rachel's budding talent became obvious last spring at Maxwell AFB, Ala. where the colonel attended the Air War College. Rachel placed second out of 64 players during the annual base match-play tournament. Not only was she the only female in the tournament, she was also the youngest by about 5 years. During the grueling competition Rachel had the pleasure of knocking her own father out of the tournament during the semi-finals, when they played each other head to head. Both joked about the event saying it was the most memorable golf experience thus far for them both.

Rachel excels not only in golf but also as a student and citizen. Rachel attended a fine arts magnet school in Alabama where she pursued another of her talents ... piano. She also qualified for the North Carolina state gymnastics meet in 1998 and maintains a grade point average of 3.6 on a 4.0 scale with a multitude of honors to boot.

The Sabino High School student said that being a military dependent and the constant moves have taught her some valuable lessons. The overachieving athlete and scholar said, "I have learned self discipline and how to mentor others in golf and school and I apply that to the rest of my life. I enjoy mentoring because I get to share my gifts with others and help them improve their skills," said Rachel.

Jon Wolf Photography

Rachel doesn't regret the moves. She is thankful for her family and the life experiences she has gained.

"I want her to do whatever makes her happy ... I will support her no matter what," said her father.

Rachel Gavin has endless possibilities for her future and many interests ... the military, music, athletics. She hopes to play golf locally in college next year and compete for a scholarship at a four-year program. Her ultimate dream is to play on the ladies' tour (LPGA). "From my vantage point, she is on her way," said her father.

2nd Annual Turkey Bowl

The 2nd Annual Turkey Bowl flag football tournament is Saturday at BAMA Park. Four teams including Luke AFB and Fort Huachuca, will compete in a round-robin format for the event, hosted by D-M and First Command Financial Planning. Games begin at 9:30 a.m. and run until 12:45 p.m. At 1:30, there will be free food and drinks for all players and family members.

Kids golf for less!

During Military Family Month, through Nov. 30, youngsters accompanied by an adult pay only $3 to golf at the Blanchard Course. This Sunday, kids teeing off with an adult get a free hot dog, fries and soda after their round. Find out more at the pro shop, 228-3734.

Win a trip to the Super Bowl

Watch your favorite team on NFL Sunday Ticket, at both D-M clubs. Football Frenzy offers free snacks, prizes and beverage specials. Sign up for one of Air Force's national drawings, for trips to Dallas for the Giants game, Dec. 9, New Orleans for the Super Bowl and Hawaii for the Pro Bowl. Trips include airfare for two, hotel and use of a rental car. Trips for four, to Disneyland and Disney World, will also be given away. Football Frenzy sponsors are American Airlines, Miller Brewing Company, the Walt Disney Company, Destination Arlington (for the Dallas game), and the Double Tree Hotel.

Turkey Shoot

Win a turkey, Sunday, at the Blanchard Course's Turkey Shoot. Golfers play with their own group, at their own tee time, in a best-ball format. Enter for only $5 at the pro shop, or phone 228-3834 for more information.

Women's soccer team

The Davis-Monthan Thunder soccer team is looking for a few good women to play soccer. Recreational players and first-time players are also welcome to come along and learn the game while having fun. New uniforms, an experienced coach, and an easy-to-keep schedule promise a good season of fun and winning. Games begin in January as the team plays in the Tucson Women's Soccer League, with most games scheduled for Sundays. Dependent spouses and high school players older than 17 can also join the team.

Cost is minimum because the team is supported by the sports program of Davis-Monthan Air Force Base. Any woman, experienced at soccer in high school, college or amateur league play, is welcome. Those who have never played before, but want good exercise and a chance to learn the game from an experienced high school and college coach can call Al Shaff at 625-3461 or Pam Belcher at 514-9270 (duty phone 228-3200) for more information.
